PROTOCOL REQUIREMENTS

Project Operator (Section 1.1)

Identify a Project Operator for the project. A Project requires one Project Operator, which can be an entity organized and licensed under the laws of its jurisdiction or a governmental body. This is the entity who takes legal responsibility for the project and its reporting.

Commit to 26-year Project Duration in the Project Implementation Agreement (Section 1.3, 2.2)

Sign the Project Implementation Agreement. This is the 26-year agreement between the Project Operator and City Forest Credits (the “Registry”) for an urban forest carbon project.

Project Location (Section 1.4)

Project must be located in or along the boundary of one of the following:

- A. “Urban Area” per Census Bureau maps;
- B. The boundary of any incorporated city or town created under the law of its state;
- C. The boundary of any unincorporated city, town, or unincorporated urban area created or designated under the law of its state;
- D. The boundary of any regional metropolitan planning agency or council established by legislative action or public charter;
- E. Within the boundary of land owned, designated, and used by a municipal or quasi-municipal entity for source water or watershed protection;
- F. Within a transportation, power transmission, or utility right of way, provided the right of way begins, ends, or passes through some portion of above criteria.

Ownership or Eligibility to Receive Potential Credits (Section 1.7)

The Project Operator must demonstrate ownership of property and eligibility to receive potential credits by meeting at least one of the following:

- A. Own the land, the trees, and potential credits upon which the Project trees are located; or
- B. Own an easement or equivalent property interest for a public right of way within which Project trees are located, own the Project trees and credits within that easement, and accept ownership of those Project trees by assuming responsibility for maintenance and liability for them; or
- C. Have a written and signed agreement from the landowner granting ownership to the Project Operator of any credits for carbon storage or other benefits delivered by Project trees on that landowner’s land. If Project trees are on private property, this agreement, or notice thereof, must be recorded in the property records of the county in which the land containing Project trees is located.

Defining the Project Area (Section 1.5)

Project Operators may include more than one planting site in a project. The initial planting of trees for all properties in a project must occur within a 36-month period or less. Project Operators may include multiple properties under one project.

Additionality (Section 4)

Project Operators must demonstrate compliance with the following additionality requirements:

- A Legal Requirements Test that declares city trees planted due to an enacted law or ordinance not eligible, except for replacement trees planted in place of removed trees for specific reasons (Section 1.8);

- Either 1) a project-specific baseline or 2) the current version of the Registry’s performance standard baseline developed in adherence with the WRI GHG Protocol (CFC Standard), supplemented by local canopy change data;
- Sign and comply with a Project Implementation Agreement with the Registry that requires a 26-year Project Duration.

Project Operators must also sign an Attestation of Additionality stating that its 26-year Project Duration commitment is additional to and longer than any commitment it makes to non-carbon project tree plantings, as well as provide information on financial additionality and prior consideration.

Planting Designs and Quantification for Credits (Section 1.2, 10, Appendix A)

All Projects must use one of three different methods for quantifying CO<sub>2</sub>. The quantification method used depends on the planting design. The Registry has developed spreadsheets and methods for Project Operators. The quantification methods include:

- Single Tree Quantification Method: trees planted in a dispersed or scattered design that are planted at least 16.5 feet apart (i.e. street trees). This method requires tracking of individual trees and tree survival for sampling and quantification.
- Clustered Quantification Method: trees planted at least 16.5 feet apart but are relatively contiguous and designed to create canopy over an area (i.e. park-like settings). This method requires tracking change in canopy, not individual tree survival.
- Area Reforestation Quantification Method: tree planting areas greater than 5 acres and where many trees are planted closer than 16.5 feet. Higher tree mortality is expected and the goals are to create canopy and a forest ecosystem. Project Operators have several quantification models to choose from, all of which produce a carbon index on a per-acre basis.

Attestation of No Net Harm and No Double Counting (Section 5)

Project Operators must sign an attestation that no project shall cause net harm and no project shall seek credits on trees, properties, or projects that have already received credits. The Project Operator must submit documentation showing no overlap of Project Trees or Project Area with any other registered urban forest carbon project.

Social Impacts (Section 11)

Project Operators will describe how the Project impacts contribute towards achievement of the global UN Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). The Registry will supply a template to evaluate how the Project aligns with the SDGs.

Validation and Verification by Third-Party Verifiers (Sections 12 & Appendix B)

Project compliance and quantification must be verified by a third-party verifier known as a Validation and Verification Body approved by the Registry.

Issuance of Ex Ante City Forest Carbon Forward Removal Credits to Project Operator (Section 6)

The forecasted amount of CO<sub>2</sub> stored during the project duration is the value from which the Registry issues ex ante City Forest Carbon Forward Removal Credits™. To ensure performance of the credits, the Registry issues credits at five times during the 26-year Project Duration:

- 10% of projected credits after planting
- 30% of projected credits at Year 4

- 30% of projected credits at Year 6
- 10% of projected credits at Year 14
- Remaining credits issued based on quantification of CO<sub>2</sub>e at Year 26

Credits for Reversal Pool Account (Section 6.2)

The Registry will issue 95% of Project credits earned and requested and will hold 5% in the Registry's Reversal Pool Account.

Understand Reversals (Section 8)

If the Project Area loses credited carbon stock, the Project Operator must return or compensate for those credits if the tree loss is due to intentional acts or gross negligence of Project Operator. If tree loss is due to fire, pests, or other acts of god (i.e., not due to the Project Operator's intentional acts or gross negligence), the Registry covers the reversed credits from its Reversal Pool Account of credits held back from all projects.

Commit to Monitoring and Reporting (Section 7)

Project Operators must submit an annual monitoring report to the Registry every year for the Project Duration. The reports must be in writing, and the Project Operator must attest to the accuracy of the reports.

Tree Sampling, Measurement, and Imaging Requirements (Appendix A)

To ensure performance of the credits, Project Operators must commit to the following at Years 4, 6, 14, and 26 based on the appropriate quantification method.

Single Tree

- 1) Initial Credit: Use the carbon quantification tool which contains a worksheet called "Data Collection" for use in tracking each tree. In that file or another tree inventory system, document the GPS coordinates for each tree planted.
- 2) Years 4 and 6: Project Operators must generate a random sample of project tree sites using the Single Tree Quantification Tool. Project Operators must visit those sampled tree sites and collect data on whether the sample contains a live tree, standing dead tree, or no tree. The tracking file includes a column where each tree is assigned a unique serial number to help with tracking each coordinate and tree picture or image.
  - a. Based on this data, the number and species of project trees is adjusted and a new CO<sub>2</sub> projected amount by Year 26 is generated.
- 3) Year 14: Project Operators must follow the same process as stated above for Years 4 and 6, except they must also measure DBH on the sample of trees. The DBH will be used to ensure growth curve consistent with the projected CO<sub>2</sub> storage at Year 26.
  - a. If the actual growth curves of project trees are less than was projected, the number of credits issued at Year 14 will be adjusted downward.
- 4) Year 26: Project Operators must generate a random sample of project trees and measure DBH on the sample of trees. The DBH will be used to calculate CO<sub>2</sub> storage at that time. Project Operators must also submit geocoded photos of the sampled trees.
  - a. Credits may be issued based on the actual CO<sub>2</sub> storage at Year 26, minus credits already issued.

INSTRUCTIONS

Project Operators must complete and submit this Initial Credit Project Design Document (PDD) to request credits after the last tree in a project has been planted. City Forest Credits then reviews this PDD as part of the validation process along with all other required project documents. An approved third-party verifier then does an independent check of all documents and compliance with the Protocol known as verification. An amendment to the Project Design Document will need to be submitted for future verification at years 4, 6, 14, and 26.

The Protocol Requirements below are a list of eligibility requirements for informational purposes which are also found in more detail in the CFC Afforestation/Reforestation Protocol Version 12, dated February 29, 2024.

Green Cities Accord and the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board (MPRB) are partnering on a third urban tree planting project to issue carbon offsets in the State of Minnesota. Green Cities Accord will serve as the Project Operator and MPRB will plant and maintain the trees. This project includes 6,973 trees that were planted within the city limits of Minneapolis, MN from April 17, 2023 to September 25, 2023 by the MPRB. The trees have been planted in public right-of-way along city streets as well as on other park board land where MPRB has the authority to plant and maintain trees. The method of planting is single-tree dispersed.

LOCATION (Section 1.4)

Project Location

Describe the city, town, or jurisdiction where the Project is located. State which urban location criteria is met from Protocol Section 1.4.

This project is located at multiple sites within the City of Minneapolis, MN, meeting the project area eligibility criteria of being in an incorporated city (section 1.4.B).

Project Area Maps

*Provide three maps of the Project Area that illustrate the location: geospatial location, regional, and detailed. Maps should include project title, relevant urban or town boundaries, and indicate where trees were planted, and a legend. ## ADDITIONALITY (Section 4)

Additionality is demonstrated by the Project in several ways, as described in the City Forest Credits Standard Section 4.9.2 and Afforestation and Reforestation Protocol. Complete and attach 1) Attestation of Additionality and 2) Project-specific baseline or Performance Standard Baseline. If Project Operator elects to use it, the Performance Standard Baseline is provided as an Attachment to this PDD.

Additionality is demonstrated by Project Operators per the Protocol in the following ways and in the Attestation of Additionality.

- Project trees are not required by law or ordinance to be planted, except for replacement trees planted in place of removed trees for specific reasons (Protocol Section 1.8). See Attestation of Planting.
- The Project did not plant trees on sites that were forested and then cleared of non-invasive trees within the prior ten years (Protocol Section 1.9)
- Project trees are additional based on a project-specific baseline or the Performance Standard Baseline attached to this PDD. If the latter case, Project Operator has provided local canopy change data to support the use of the Performance Standard Baseline.
- Project Operator has signed a Project Implementation Agreement with City Forest Credits for 26 years.
- The 26-year Project Duration commitment is additional to and longer than any commitment our organization makes to non-carbon project tree plantings.
- Project Operator has signed the Attestation of Additionality.
- The revenue from the sale of carbon credits will play a material role in the successful and durable storage of Project Trees' carbon stock by providing funding that will help ensure the establishment and long-term health of Project Trees. Green Cities Accord and the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board have signed an Agreement to Collaborate that states that after administration and registry related fees, any remaining proceeds from the sale of carbon credits shall be transferred to the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board and the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board shall use such proceeds exclusively for the funding of urban forestry activities defined as tree purchase, tree planting and tree maintenance.
- Green Cities Accord and the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board first started discussions regarding an urban tree carbon offset project in 2021.

Based on various tree canopy cover studies completed for Minneapolis, the City has experienced canopy cover decline over the past fifteen years which supports the Performance Standard Baseline. Due to the continuous canopy loss overtime, no credit adjustment was integrated into this project.

PLANTING DESIGN AND CARBON QUANTIFICATION DOCUMENTATION (1.2, 10, Appendix A)

Describe the planting design and appropriate quantification method for the project – Single Tree, Clustered, or Area Reforestation. Include the project’s climate zone and data collection. Outline the estimated total number of credits to be issued to the project over 26 years as well as the amount to be issued upon successful validation and verification in Year 1. Attach the quantification tool and provide the data you have collected for Project Trees.

Total number of trees planted	6,973
Project area (acres), if applicable	N/A
Total number of trees per acre, if applicable	N/A
Credits attributed to the project (tCO <sub>2</sub> e)	18,583
Credits after mortality deduction (20%)	14,867
Contribution to Registry Reversal Pool Account (5%) (tCO <sub>2</sub> e)	743
Total credits to be issued to the Project Operator (tCO<sub>2</sub>e)	14,124
Total credits requested to be issued in Year 1 (10% of above)	1,412

GHG Assertion:

Project Operator asserts that the Project results in GHG emissions mitigation of 14,124 tons CO<sub>2</sub>e over the 26-year Project Duration. Project Operator will provide tree survival and growth data, quantify tons CO<sub>2</sub>e, and submit documentation for validation, verification, and credit issuance at Years 4, 6, 14, and 26, per the Afforestation and Reforestation Planting Protocol and Single Tree Planting Design and Quantification Method.

Project Operator asserts that, per Protocol guidelines, 10% of the Project GHG emissions mitigation is issued after initial tree planting, or 1,412 tons CO<sub>2</sub>e.

Explanation of Planting Design:

6,973 trees were planted using the single-tree dispersed design. Due to the devastation of Minneapolis’ urban tree canopy from Dutch Elm Disease in the 1970s and more recently from the Emerald Ash Borer, the MPRB typically plants two or more species of trees on each street. Species diversity helps reduce the losses that may occur from a future insect or disease infestation. The trees planted in this project represent dozens of species and varieties, with the majority being oak, hackberry, maple, ginkgo, catalpa, honeylocust and Kentucky Coffee Tree.

Provide a map that includes both the Project Area and the closest registered urban forest afforestation or reforestation project based on the registered urban forest planting project database KML/Shapefile provided by CFC to demonstrate that the Project does not overlap with any existing urban forest carbon projects.*

Project Operator has mapped the Project Trees against the registered urban forest planting project database and determined that there is no overlap of Project Trees with any registered urban forest afforestation or reforestation carbon project.

Project Operator has signed the Attestation of No Double Counting of Credits and No Net Harm on May 20, 2024.

SOCIAL IMPACTS (Section 11)

Project Operators shall use the Carbon Project Social Impacts template to evaluate how their Project aligns with the UN Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). CFC will provide the template. Summarize the three to five main SDGs attributed to this Project.

Good Health and Well-Being: The trees planted through the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board Planting Project 2023 were all planted in the City of Minneapolis, a very developed and impervious landscape. In addition to carbon sequestration, these trees provide other co-benefits to the urban core including the reduction of air pollution, urban heat effects and stormwater runoff. Most trees were planted as street trees, acting as a screen for particulate air pollution, specifically from traffic. These trees also increase the stormwater infiltration rate of the urban soils.

Sustainable Cities and Communities: The trees planted through the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board Planting Project 2023 were all planted in the City of Minneapolis, a very developed and impervious landscape. In addition to carbon sequestration, these trees provide other co-benefits to the urban core including the reduction of air pollution, urban heat effects and stormwater runoff. Most trees were planted as street trees, acting as a screen for particulate air pollution, specifically from traffic. These trees also increase the stormwater infiltration rate of the urban soils. Also, this project planted trees specifically in areas of limited tree coverage that have a high correlation with areas of concentrated poverty. These areas display the highest vulnerability to impacts from climate change and are in need of assistance in greening projects.

Climate Action: The trees planted through the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board Planting Project 2023 were all planted in the City of Minneapolis, a very developed and impervious landscape. In addition to carbon sequestration, these trees provide other co-benefits to the urban core including the reduction of air pollution, urban heat effects and stormwater runoff. Most trees were planted as street trees and will shade homes and buildings, reducing heating and cooling costs over time. These trees also increase the stormwater infiltration rate of the urban soils and habitat diversity throughout the city.

MONITORING AND REPORTING (Section 7)

Throughout the Project Duration, the Project Operator must report on tree conditions across the Project Area through annual reports and with more detailed data at Years 4, 6, 14, and 26.

Monitoring Reports

Project Operator is required to submit an annual monitoring report on the anniversary of the date of the first Verification Report. For example, if the verification report is dated January 31, 2024, the first monitoring report will be due by January 31, 2025 and each January 31st thereafter for the duration of the project. CFC will provide the due dates for future monitoring reports to Project Operators after the first verification report is approved. Project Operators must submit reports in writing and must attest to the accuracy of the reports. The reports must contain any changes in eligibility status of the Project Operator and any significant tree loss. The information includes updates to land ownership, changes to project design, changes in implementation or management and changes in tree or canopy loss.

Future Project Design Documents and Reporting

Project Operator is required to submit an updated Project Design Document at Years 4, 6, 14, and 26, as well as sampling, measurement of trees or canopy coverage, and/or quantification of CO<sub>2</sub>e. Project Operators will submit the updated documentation for request of credit issuance in lieu of a monitoring report that year.

Monitoring Plans

Confirm and describe your plans for annual monitoring of this project and specifics on how sampling, measurement, and imaging (see Protocol Requirements and Appendix A) will be conducted based on your project's quantification method.

Green Cities Accord will work in coordination with the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board to submit monitoring reports. The Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board inspects and records significant tree or canopy loss annually. This data, and any eligibility status will be requested by Green Cities Accord for monitoring reports.

For imaging at years 4, 6, 14 and 26 years, Green Cities Accord will work in coordination with seasonal staff to obtain geocoded photos of 20% of trees, recorded and assigned a unique serial number.

PERFORMANCE STANDARD BASELINE METHODOLOGY (Section 4)

There is a second additionality methodology set out in the WRI GHG Protocol guidelines – the Performance Standard methodology. This Performance Standard essentially allows the project developer, or in our case, the developers of the protocol, to create a performance standard baseline using the data from similar activities over geographic and temporal ranges.

The common perception, particularly in the United States, is that projects must meet a project specific test. Project-specific additionality is easy to grasp conceptually. The 2014 Climate Action Reserve urban forest protocol essentially uses project-specific requirements and methods.

However, the WRI GHG Protocol clearly states that either a project-specific test or a performance standard baseline is acceptable.<sup>1</sup> One key reason for this is that regional or national data can give a more accurate picture of existing activity than a narrow focus on one project or organization.

Narrowing the lens of additionality to one project or one tree-planting entity can give excellent data on that project or entity, which data can also be compared to other projects or entities (common practice). But plucking one project or entity out of its regional or national context ignores all comparable regional or national data. And that regional or national data may give a more accurate standard than data from one project or entity.

By analogy: one pixel on a screen may be dark. If all you look at is the dark pixel, you see darkness. But the rest of screen may consist of white pixels and be white. Similarly, one active tree-planting organization does not mean its trees are additional on a regional basis. If the region is losing trees, the baseline of activity may be negative regardless of what one active project or entity is doing. Here is the methodology described in the WRI GHG Protocol to determine a Performance Standard baseline, together with the application of each factor to urban forestry:

Table 2.1 Performance Standard Factors

WRI Performance Standard Factor	As Applied to Urban Forestry
Describe the project activity	Increase in urban trees
Identify the types of candidates	Cities and towns, quasi-governmental entities like utilities, watersheds, and educational institutions, and private property owners
Set the geographic scope (a national scope is explicitly approved as the starting point)	Could use national data for urban forestry, or regional data
Set the temporal scope (start with 5-7 years and justify longer or shorter)	Use 4-7 years for urban forestry
Identify a list of multiple baseline candidates	Many urban areas, which could be blended mathematically to produce a performance standard baseline

The Performance Standard methodology approves of the use of data from many different baseline candidates. In the case of urban forestry, those baseline candidates are other urban areas.<sup>2</sup>

As stated above, the project activity defined is obtaining an increase in urban trees. The best data to show the increase in urban trees via urban forest project activities is national or regional data on tree canopy in urban areas. National or regional data will give a more comprehensive picture of the relevant activity (increase in urban trees) than data from one city, in the same way that a satellite photo of a city shows a more accurate picture of tree canopy in a city than an aerial photo of one neighborhood. Tree canopy data measures the tree cover in urban areas, so it includes multiple baseline candidates such as city governments and private property owners. Tree canopy data, over time, would show the increase or decrease in tree cover.

Data on Tree Canopy Change over Time in Urban Areas

The CFC quantitative team determined that there were data on urban tree canopy cover with a temporal range of four to six years available from four geographic regions. The data are set forth below:

Table 2.2 Changes in Urban Tree Canopy (UTC) by Region (from Nowak and Greenfield, 2012, see footnote 7)

These data have been updated by Nowak and Greenfield.<sup>3</sup> The 2012 data show that urban tree canopy is experiencing negative growth in all four regions. The 2018 data document continued loss of urban tree cover.

Table 3 of the 2018 article shows data for all states, with a national loss of urban and community tree cover of 175,000 acres per year during the study years of 2009-2014.

To put this loss in perspective, the total land area of urban and community tree cover loss during the study years totals 1,367 square miles – equal to the combined land area of New York City, Atlanta, Philadelphia, Miami, Boston, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Portland, OR, San Francisco, Seattle, and Boise.

Even though there may be individual tree planting activities that increase the number of urban trees within small geographic locations, the performance of activities to increase tree cover shows a negative baseline. The Drafting Group did not use negative baselines for the Tree Planting Protocol, but determined to use baselines of zero.

Deployment of the Performance Standard baseline methodology for a City Forest Planting Protocol is supported by conclusions that make sense and are anchored in the real world:

- With the data showing that tree loss exceeds gains from planting, new plantings are justified as additional to that decreasing canopy baseline. In fact, the negative baseline would justify as additional any trees that are protected from removal.
- Because almost no urban trees are planted now with carbon as a decisive factor, urban tree planting done to sequester carbon is additional;
- Almost no urban trees are currently planted with a contractual commitment for monitoring. Maintenance of trees is universally an intention, one that is frequently reached when budgets are cut, as in the Covid-19 era. The 25-year commitment required by this Protocol is entirely additional to any practice in place in the U.S. and will result in substantial additional trees surviving to maturity;

- Because the urban forest is a public resource, and because public funding falls far short of maintaining tree cover and stocking, carbon revenues will result in additional trees planted or in maintenance that will result in additional trees surviving to maturity;
- Because virtually all new large-scale urban tree planting is conducted by governmental entities or non-profits, or by private property developers complying with governmental regulations (which would not be eligible for carbon credits under our protocol), and because any carbon revenues will defray only a portion of the costs of tree planting, there is little danger of unjust enrichment to developers of city forest carbon projects.

Last, The WRI GHG Protocol recognizes explicitly that the principles underlying carbon protocols need to be adapted to different types of projects. The WRI Protocol further approves of balancing the stringency of requirements with the need to encourage participation in desirable carbon projects:

Setting the stringency of additionality rules involves a balancing act. Additionality criteria that are too lenient and grant recognition for “non-additional” GHG reductions will undermine the GHG program’s effectiveness. On the other hand, making the criteria for additionality too stringent could unnecessarily limit the number of recognized GHG reductions, in some cases excluding project activities that are truly additional and highly desirable. In practice, no approach to additionality can completely avoid these kinds of errors. Generally, reducing one type of error will result in an increase of the other. Ultimately, there is no technically correct level of stringency for additionality rules. GHG programs may decide based on their policy objectives that it is better to avoid one type of error than the other.<sup>4</sup>

The policy considerations weigh heavily in favor of “highly desirable” planting projects to reverse tree loss for the public resource of city forests.

QUANTIFYING CARBON DIOXIDE STORAGE AND CO-BENEFITS FOR URBAN TREE PLANTING PROJECTS (Appendix A)

Introduction

Ecoservices provided by trees to human beneficiaries are classified according to their spatial scale as global and local (Costanza 2008) (citations for Part Two are listed in References). Removal of carbon dioxide (CO<sub>2</sub>) from the atmosphere by urban forests is global because the atmosphere is so well-mixed it does not matter where the trees are located. The effects of urban forests on building energy use is a local-scale service because it depends on the proximity of trees to buildings.

To quantify these and other ecoservices City Forest Credits (CFC) has relied on peer-reviewed research that has combined measurements and modeling of urban tree biomass, and effects of trees on building energy use, rainfall interception, and air quality. CFC has used the most current science available on urban tree growth in its estimates of CO<sub>2</sub> storage (McPherson et al., 2016a). CFC's quantification tools provide estimates of co-benefits after 25 years in Resource Units (i.e., kWh of electricity saved) and dollars per year. Values for co-benefits are first-order approximations extracted from the i-Tree Streets (i-Tree Eco) datasets for each of the 16 U.S. reference cities/climate zones (<https://www.itreetools.org/tools/i-tree-eco>) (Maco and McPherson, 2003). Modeling approaches and error estimates associated with quantification of CO<sub>2</sub> storage and co-benefits have been documented in numerous publications (see References below) and are summarized here.

Carbon Dioxide Storage

Project Operators must use one of three different methods for quantifying carbon dioxide (CO<sub>2</sub>) storage in urban forest carbon projects. Selection of the quantification method depends on the planting project design:

- Single Tree Method - trees planted in a dispersed or scattered design and that are planted at least 10 feet apart (i.e. street trees). This method requires tracking of individual trees and tree survival for sampling and quantification.
- Clustered Method - to trees planted at least 10 feet apart but are relatively contiguous and designed to create canopy over an area (i.e park-like settings). This method requires tracking change in canopy, not individual tree survival
- Area Reforestation Method – tree planting areas greater than 5 acres and where many trees are planted closer than 10 feet. Higher tree mortality is expected and the goals are to create canopy and a forest ecosystem. Project Operators have several quantification models to choose from, all of which produce a carbon index on a per-acre basis.

In all cases, the estimated amount of CO<sub>2</sub> stored 26-years after planting is calculated. The forecasted amount of CO<sub>2</sub> stored during this time is the value from which the Registry issues ex ante Carbon Forward Removal Credits.TM

To ensure performance of the credits, the Registry issues Carbon Forward Removal Credits at five times during the 26-year Project Duration:

- 10% after planting

- 30% in Year 4, after sampling and mortality check or imaging and calculating canopy
- 30% in Year 6, after sampling and mortality check or imaging and calculating canopy
- 10% in Year 14, after measuring sampled trees or imaging and calculating canopy and
- “True-up” credits at the end of the initial Project Duration in Year 26, when CO<sub>2</sub>e is quantified from tree measurement and final credits are issued for CO<sub>2</sub>e stored minus credits already issued.

The mortality checks at Years 4 and 6 correspond to national mortality data that shows increased survival rates after three years and six years.

The Registry will issue 95% of Project Credits earned and will hold 5% of total credits in the Registry’s Reversal Pool Account. This 5% Reversal Pool Account deduction is applied in all three quantification methods before calculation of any crediting, with these funds going into a program-wide pool to insure against unavoidable reversals due to catastrophic loss of trees.

All ex-ante Carbon Forward Removal Credits convert to ex post City Forest Carbon+ Credits at Year 26 and are marked in the registry of credits.

Scientific Basis for Carbon Dioxide Quantification

Estimates of stored (amount accumulated over many years) and sequestered CO<sub>2</sub> (i.e., net amount stored by tree growth over one year) are based on the U.S. Forest Service’s recently published technical manual and the extensive Urban Tree Database (UTD), which catalogs urban trees with their projected growth tailored to specific geographic regions (McPherson et al. 2016a, b). The products are a culmination of 14 years of work, analyzing more than 14,000 trees across the United States. Whereas prior growth models typically featured only a few species specific to a given city or region, the newly released database features 171 distinct species across 16 U.S. climate zones. The trees studied also spanned a range of ages with data collected from a consistent set of measurements. Advances in statistical modeling have given the projected growth dimensions a level of accuracy never before seen. Moving beyond just calculating a tree’s diameter or age to determine expected growth, the research incorporates 365 sets of tree growth equations to project growth.

Users select their climate zone from the 16 U.S. climate zones (Fig. 1). Calculations of CO<sub>2</sub> stored are for a representative species for each tree-type that was one of the predominant street tree species per reference city (Peper et al., 2001). The “Reference city” refers to the city selected for intensive study within each climate zone (McPherson, 2010). About 20 of the most abundant species were selected for sampling in each reference city. The sample was stratified into nine diameter at breast height (DBH) classes (0 to 7.6, 7.6 to 15.2, 15.2 to 30.5, 30.5 to 45.7, 45.7 to 61.0, 61.0 to 76.2, 76.2 to 91.4, 91.4 to 106.7, and >106.7 cm). Typically 10 to 15 trees per DBH class were randomly chosen. Data were collected for 16 to 74 trees in total from each species. Measurements included: species name, age, DBH [to the nearest 0.1 cm (0.39 in)], tree height [to the nearest 0.5 m (1.64 ft.)], crown height [to the nearest 0.5 m (1.64 ft.)], and crown diameter in two directions [parallel and perpendicular to nearest street to the nearest 0.5 m (1.64 ft.)]. Tree age was determined from local residents, the city’s urban forester, street and home construction dates, historical planting records, and aerial and historical photos.

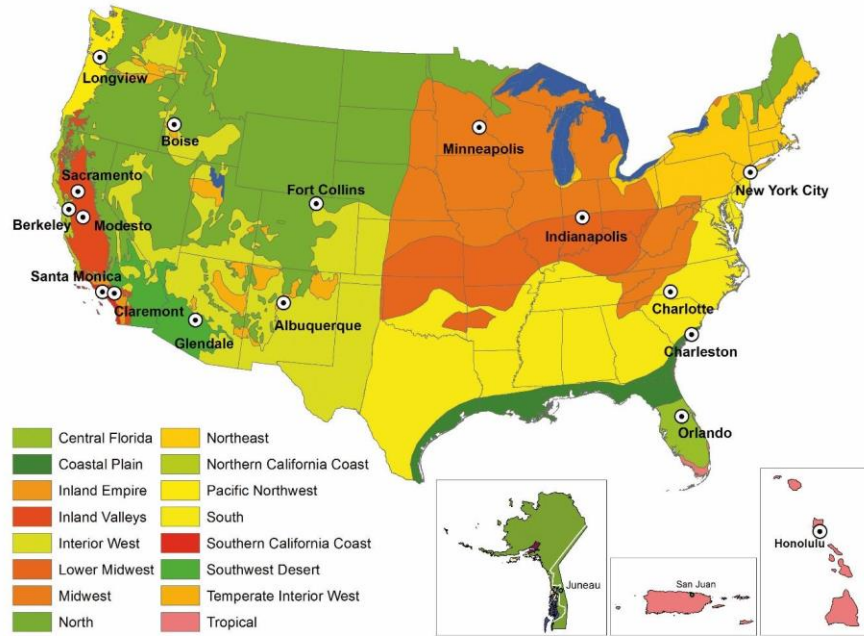

Figure 1. Climate zones of the United States and Puerto Rico were aggregated from 45 Sunset climate zones into 16 zones. Each zone has a reference city where tree data were collected. Sacramento, California was added as a second reference city (with Modesto) to the Inland Valleys zone. Zones for Alaska, Puerto Rico and Hawaii are shown in the insets (map courtesy of Pacific Southwest Research Station).

Species Assignment by Tree-Type

Representative species for each tree-type in the South climate zone (reference city is Charlotte, NC) are shown in Table 1. They were chosen because extensive measurements were taken on them to generate growth equations, and their mature size and form was deemed typical of other trees in that tree-type. Representative species were not available for some tree-types because none were measured. In that case, a species of similar mature size and form from the same climate zone was selected, or one from another climate zone was selected. For example, no Broadleaf Evergreen Large (BEL) species was measured in the South reference city. Because of its large mature size, Quercus nigra was selected to represent the BEL tree-type, although it is deciduous for a short time. Pinus contorta, which was measured in the PNW climate zone, was selected for the CES tree-type, because no CES species was measured in the South.

Table 1. Nine tree-types and abbreviations. Representative species assigned to each tree-type in the South climate zone are listed. The biomass equations (species, urban general broadleaf [UGB], urban general conifer [UGC]) and dry weight density (kg/m<sup>3</sup>) used to calculate biomass are listed for each tree-type.

Calculating Biomass and Carbon Dioxide Stored

To estimate CO<sub>2</sub> stored, the biomass for each tree-type was calculated using urban-based allometric equations because open-growing city trees partition carbon differently than forest trees (McPherson et al., 2017a). Input variables included climate zone, species, and DBH. To project tree size at 25-years after planting, we used DBH obtained from UTD growth curves for each representative species.

Biomass equations were compiled for 26 open-grown urban trees species from literature sources (Aguaron and McPherson, 2012). General equations (Urban Gen Broadleaf and Urban Gen Conifer) were developed from the 26 urban-based equations that were species specific (McPherson et al., 2016a). These equations were used if the species of interest could not be matched taxonomically or through wood form to one of the urban species with a biomass equation. Hence, urban general equations were an alternative to applying species-specific equations because many species did not have an equation.

These allometric equations yielded aboveground wood volume. Species-specific dry weight (DW) density factors (Table 1) were used to convert green volume into dry weight (7a). The urban general equations required looking up a dry weight density factor (in Jenkins et al. 2004 first, but if not available then the Global Wood Density Database). The amount of belowground biomass in roots of urban trees is not well researched. This work assumed that root biomass was 28% of total tree biomass (Cairns et al., 1997; Husch et al., 2003; Wenger, 1984). Wood volume (dry weight) was converted to C by multiplying by the constant 0.50 (Leith, 1975), and C was converted to CO<sub>2</sub> by multiplying by 3.667.

Error Estimates and Limitations

The lack of biometric data from the field remains a serious limitation to our ability to calibrate biomass equations and assign error estimates for urban trees. Differences between modeled and actual tree growth adds uncertainty to CO<sub>2</sub> sequestration estimates. Species assignment errors result from matching species planted with the tree-type used for biomass and growth calculations. The magnitude of this error depends on the goodness of fit in terms of matching size and growth rate. In previous urban studies the prediction bias for estimates of CO<sub>2</sub> storage ranged from -9% to +15%, with inaccuracies as much as 51% RMSE (Timilsina et al., 2014). Hence, a conservative estimate of error of ± 20% can be applied to estimates of total CO<sub>2</sub> stored as an indicator of precision.

Co-Benefit: Energy Savings

Trees and forests can offer energy savings in two important ways. In warmer climates or hotter months, trees can reduce air conditioning bills by keeping buildings cooler through reducing regional air temperatures and offering shade. In colder climates or cooler months, trees can confer savings on the fuel needed to heat buildings by reducing the amount of cold winds that can strip away heat.

Energy conservation by trees is important because building energy use is a major contributor to greenhouse gas emissions. Oil or gas furnaces and most forms of electricity generation produce CO<sub>2</sub> and other pollutants as by-products. Reducing the amount of energy consumed by buildings in urban areas is one of the most effective methods of combatting climate change. Energy consumption is also a costly burden on many low-income families, especially during mid-summer or mid-winter. Furthermore, electricity consumption during mid-summer can sometimes over-extend local power grids leading to rolling brownouts and other problems.

Energy savings are calculated through numerical models and simulations built from observational data on proximity of trees to buildings, tree shapes, tree sizes, building age classes, and meteorological data from McPherson et al. (2017) and McPherson and Simpson (2003). The main parameters affecting the overall amount of energy savings are crown shape, building proximity, azimuth, local climate, and season. Shading effects are based on the distribution of street trees with respect to buildings recorded from aerial photographs for each reference city (McPherson and Simpson, 2003). If a sampled tree was located within 18 m of a conditioned building, information on its distance and compass bearing relative to a building, building age class (which influences energy use) and types of heating and cooling equipment were collected and used as inputs to calculate effects of shade on annual heating and cooling energy effects. Because these distributions were unique to each city, energy values are considered first-order approximations.

In addition to localized shade effects, which were assumed to accrue only to trees within 18 m of a building, lowered air temperatures and windspeeds from increased neighborhood tree cover (referred to as climate effects) can produce a net decrease in demand for winter heating and summer cooling (reduced wind speeds by themselves may increase or decrease cooling demand, depending on the circumstances). Climate effects on energy use, air temperature, and wind speed, as a function of neighborhood canopy cover, were estimated from published values for each reference city. The percentages of canopy cover increase were calculated for 20-year-old large, medium, and small trees, based on their crown projection areas and effective lot size (actual lot size plus a portion of adjacent street and other rights-of-way) of 10,000 ft<sup>2</sup> (929 m<sup>2</sup>), and one tree on average was assumed per lot. Climate effects were estimated by simulating effects of wind and air-temperature reductions on building energy use.

In the case of urban Tree Preservation Projects, trees may not be close enough to buildings to provide shading effects, but they may influence neighborhood climate. Because these effects are highly site-specific, we conservatively apply an 80% reduction to the energy effects of trees for Preservation Projects.

Energy savings are calculated as a real-dollar amount. This is calculated by applying overall reductions in oil and gas usage or electricity usage to the regional cost of oil and gas or electricity for residential customers. Colder regions tend to see larger savings in heating and warmer regions tend to see larger savings in cooling.

Error Estimates and Limitations

Formulaic errors occur in modeling of energy effects. For example, relations between different levels of tree canopy cover and summertime air temperatures are not well-researched. Another source of error stems from differences between the airport climate data (i.e., Los Angeles International Airport) used to model energy effects and the actual climate of the study area (i.e., Los Angeles urban area). Because of the uncertainty associated with modeling effects of trees on building energy use, energy estimates may be accurate within  $\pm 25$  percent (Hildebrandt & Sarkovich, 1998).

Co-Benefit: Rainfall Interception

Forest canopies normally intercept 10-40% of rainfall before it hits the ground, thereby reducing stormwater runoff. The large amount of water that a tree crown can capture during a rainfall event makes tree planting a best management practice for urban stormwater control.

City Forest Credits uses a numerical interception model to calculate the amount of annual rainfall intercepted by trees, as well as throughfall and stem flow (Xiao et al., 2000). This model uses species-specific leaf surface areas and other parameters from the Urban Tree Database. For example, deciduous trees in climate zones with longer “in-leaf” seasons will tend to intercept more rainfall than similar species in colder areas shorter foliage periods. Model results were compared to observed patterns of rainfall interception and found to be accurate. This method quantifies only the amount of rainfall intercepted by the tree crown, and does not incorporate surface and subsurface effects on overland flow.

The rainfall interception benefit was priced by estimating costs of controlling stormwater runoff. Water quality and/or flood control costs were calculated per unit volume of runoff controlled and this price was multiplied by the amount of rainfall intercepted annually.

Error Estimates and Limitations

Estimates of rainfall interception are sensitive to uncertainties regarding rainfall patterns, tree leaf area and surface storage capacities. Rainfall amount, intensity and duration can vary considerably within a climate zone, a factor not considered by the model. Although tree leaf area estimates were derived from extensive measurements on over 14,000 street trees across the U.S. (McPherson et al., 2016a), actual leaf area may differ because of differences in tree health and management. Leaf surface storage capacity, the depth of water that foliage can capture, was recently found to vary threefold among 20 tree species (Xiao & McPherson, 2016). A shortcoming is that this model used the same value (1 mm) for all species. Given these limitations, interception estimates may have uncertainty as great as  $\pm 20$  percent.

Co-Benefit: Air Quality

The uptake of air pollutants by urban forests can lower concentrations and affect human health (Derkzen et al., 2015; Nowak et al., 2014). However, pollutant concentrations can be increased if the tree canopy restricts polluted air from mixing with the surrounding atmosphere (Vos et al., 2013). Urban forests are capable of improving air quality by lowering pollutant concentrations enough to significantly affect human health. Generally, trees are able to reduce ozone, nitric oxides, and particulate matter. Some trees can reduce net volatile organic compounds (VOCs), but others can increase them through natural processes. Regardless of the net VOC production, urban forests usually confer a net positive benefit to air quality. Urban forests reduce pollutants through dry deposition on surfaces and uptake of pollutants into leaf stomata.

A numerical model calculated hourly pollutant dry deposition per tree at the regional scale using deposition velocities, hourly meteorological data and pollutant concentrations from local monitoring stations (Scott et al., 1998). The monetary value of tree effects on air quality reflects the value that society places on clean air, as indicated by willingness to pay for pollutant reductions. The monetary value of air quality effects were derived from models that calculated the marginal damage control costs of different pollutants to meet air quality standards (Wang and Santini 1995). Higher costs were associated with higher pollutant concentrations and larger populations exposed to these contaminants.

Error Estimates and Limitations

Pollutant deposition estimates are sensitive to uncertainties associated with canopy resistance, resuspension rates and the spatial distribution of air pollutants and trees. For example, deposition to urban forests during warm periods may be underestimated if the stomata of well-watered trees remain open. In the model, hourly meteorological data from a single station for each climate zone may not be spatially representative of conditions in local atmospheric surface layers. Estimates of air pollutant uptake may be accurate within  $\pm 25$  percent.

Conclusions

Our estimates of carbon dioxide storage and co-benefits reflect an incomplete understanding of the processes by which ecoservices are generated and valued (Schulp et al., 2014). Our choice of co-benefits to quantify was limited to those for which numerical models were available. There are many important benefits produced by trees that are not quantified and monetized. These include effects of urban forests on local economies, wildlife, biodiversity and human health and well-being. For instance, effects of urban trees on increased property values have proven to be substantial (Anderson & Cordell, 1988). Previous analyses modeled these “other” benefits of trees by applying the contribution to residential sales prices of a large front yard tree (0.88%) (McPherson et al., 2005). We have not incorporated this benefit because property values are highly variable. It is likely that co-benefits reported here are conservative estimates of the actual ecoservices resulting from local tree planting projects.

The Project consists of thousands of trees planted within the boundary of Minneapolis, MN. Tree Owner is the owner of the trees submitted for the Project set forth in Exhibit B (the “Trees”) and the entity responsible and liable for the Project’s funding required to purchase, plant and maintain the trees, the tree planting and ongoing maintenance of the trees and associated Carbon Stock, including, without limitation, the establishment, growth, protection, replacement, and maintenance of such Carbon Stock, as further detailed below in Section 3, (“Tree Management”). ## Recitals

A. Tree Owner desires to have the GHG reduction and related Co-benefits associated with its urban forestry activities monetized, exclusively in furtherance of funding additional urban forestry activities;

B. As part of its urban forestry activities, Tree Owner desires to undertake the Project, including, performing all Tree Management and related activities;

C. Tree Owner desires to engage Project Operator to assist in undertaking the Project, specifically, with the GHG administrative aspects of the Project with the Registry, including, registration, reporting, verification, operation, and facilitation of the Project with the Registry, and the marketing, sale, transfer, and/or retirement of any resulting Credits (“Project Administration”). For the avoidance of doubt, Project Administration does not include Tree Management and vice versa;

D. Project Operator is collaborating with the Registry that establishes standards in protocols for the:

(i) development and implementation of projects that seek to sequester greenhouse gas (“GHG”) emissions and provide other benefits, such as storm water reductions, air quality benefits, and energy savings (“Co-benefits”) from tree planting and tree preservation on land in metropolitan areas (“City Forest Carbon Projects”);

(ii) calculation of GHG emission sequestration and Co-benefits by City Forest Carbon Projects; and

(iii) verification of GHG emission sequestration and Co-benefits produced by City Forest Carbon Projects, such as the Project. The Registry also issues carbon credits to City Forest Carbon Projects, such as the Project, per the Registry’s protocols. In addition, the Registry tracks the issuance, transfer, and retirement of Credits over time in a secure database.

E. The Registry has developed an Afforestation and Reforestation Protocol Version 12 dated February 29, 2024 (the “Protocol”) and all defined terms used in the Protocol have the same meaning here. Notwithstanding anything to the contrary, the terms of this Agreement shall govern any conflict that arises in connection with Registry-produced documents such as the City Forest Credit Standard 4.0 and the Protocol.

F. As part of the Project Administration, Project Operator has applied to, and been initially approved by, the Registry to conduct the Project under the Protocol. Further, Project Operator and Tree Owner will enter into a Project Implementation Agreement with Registry.

G. This Agreement sets forth certain rights, obligations, and restrictions relating to the Project, to ensure, among other issues, that Project Operator and Tree Owner remain in compliance with the Protocol, this Agreement, and the Project Implementation Agreement for the Project Duration, as defined in the Protocol, and any extensions thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, in consideration of the mutual covenants, terms, conditions, and restrictions contained herein, the receipt and sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged, the Parties hereby agree as follows:

1. Purpose and Intent

In furtherance of the Project's development and the issuance and monetization of associated Credits, Tree Owner agrees to provide Tree Management and Project Operator agrees to provide Project Administration for the Project Duration, and any extensions thereof. Tree Owner shall pay all costs, and assume all responsibilities and liabilities, for the Tree Management, and hereby releases Project Operator from any such costs, responsibilities, and/or liabilities. Project Operator shall pay all costs, and, to the extent enabled or supported by Tree Owner's performance hereunder, assume responsibilities and liabilities, for the Project Administration.

2. Credit and Project Administration Rights Granted; Non-Interference

(a) Tree Owner hereby exclusively, perpetually, and irrevocably transfers the title and rights to, and beneficial interest in, any and all Credits issued to the Project, including, all associated Environmental Attributes (as defined below) fully bundled and intact, to Project Operator in furtherance of Project Operator providing the Project Administration. Tree Owner shall not undertake, or allow, any transactions, sales, assignments, transfers, claims, certifications, affidavits, reports, attestations, actions, omissions, or statements that interfere with, encumber, or otherwise impair the Credits or their associated Environmental Attributes, or Project Operator's ownership of, or ability to validate, verify, substantiate, transfer, sell, retire, and/or demonstrate the permanence and integrity of such Credits or associated Environmental Attributes, including, without limitation, ensuring no unbundling, selling, altering, claiming, reporting, transferring, disaggregating, encumbering, or otherwise transforming or modifying of such Environmental Attributes or Credits occurs, and that any Avoidable Reversals by Tree Owner, in the context of Tree Management or otherwise, are promptly addressed, remedied, replaced, and/or compensated by Tree Owner.

(b) Tree Owner hereby authorizes Project Operator to undertake the Project Administration and grants Project Operator any and all rights, licenses, and authorizations necessary and/or reasonably required for Project Operator to perform the Project Administration, in accordance with this Agreement, the Project Implementation Agreement, the Protocol, and Registry produced and required documents, including, without limitation, rights, licenses, and authorizations to access, register, assess, audit, measure, document, substantiate, validate, and/or verify the Project, the condition of the Project's trees and Carbon Stock, the condition of Tree Management, and/or related documents and information, rights to request issuance and sell, transfer, and/or retire the associated Credits (and all associated Environmental Attributes), and rights to share any access, verification, measurements, registration, validations, audits, documents, and/or information in connection with the foregoing with the Registry, verifiers, Credit buyers, and other third parties in Project Operator's sole and reasonable discretion.

(c) Tree Management by Tree Owner shall also include, without limitation: (i) maintaining tools and processes for monitoring tree growth during the Project Duration; (ii) providing evidence of Tree Owner's fee ownership of the Tree, (iii) providing the date range of the Project's tree planting; (iv) providing the list of third parties that participated in planting and that took photos of planting; (v) providing the number of trees planted, species (tree data), and Planting Method; and (vi) providing proof of tree planting, including, without limitation, via third party invoices, for preparation of Project application by Project Operator after tree planting.

(d) Tree Management by Tree Owner shall also include, without limitation: (i) providing any changes in land ownership of the Project Area; (ii) providing any changes in the Project Design; (iii) providing any changes in the implementation or management of the Project; (iv) providing any significant changes to the site; (v) providing any significant tree or canopy losses estimated to be greater than 10% of Project Trees or 10% of canopy; (vi) providing any anticipated future canopy loss; and

(vii) providing any other significant elements to report for preparation of annual monitoring report by Project Operator.

(e) Tree Management by Tree Owner shall also include, without limitation, Tree Owner being responsible and liable for certain Reversals of, decreases in, and reversals of the Project's Carbon Stock, including, without limitation: (i) ensuring that any "Avoidable Reversal", defined herein as Tree Owner's actions and/or omissions that were negligent, grossly negligent, or undertaken with willful intent that resulted in a Reversal, promptly has such Avoidable Reversal's associated shortfall addressed, remedied, replaced, and/or compensated for by Tree Owner, including, without limitation, any compensation for, and/or replacement of, the associated shortfall due to the Registry (e.g. submitting Credits and/or the payment of the $20 per tonne shortfall fee to the Registry to cover the shortfall), and/or due to the ultimate buyers of the Credits under the respective Credit purchase agreements (including, without limitation, buyers for which Project Operator retires Credits); and (ii) reversals in connection with a breach of Tree Owner's obligations, representations, or warranties hereunder. Tree Owner shall immediately provide verbal and written notice to Project Operator any time it becomes aware of an actual or potential event that creates, or may create, an Avoidable Reversal. Project Operator may use contractors, subcontractors, or other third parties for the provision of Project Administration; provided that, Project Operator shall remain responsible and liable for such provision by such third parties.

(b) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary, the Parties hereby acknowledge and agree that Project Operator's provision of Project Administration is reliant on, and enabled and supported by, Tree Owner's provisions of Tree Management in accordance with this Agreement. Therefore, Project Operator shall be entitled to elect to suspend Project Administration in the event, and for the length of time, it determines, in its sole and reasonable discretion, Tree Owner is not performing Tree Management in accordance with this Agreement, the Protocol, or is otherwise in breach of its obligations, representations, and/or warranties hereunder. Tree Owner hereby releases Project Operator from any liability associated with Project Operator's non-performance of Project Administration to the extent caused by market conditions beyond the control of either Party that render credits economically unviable or unsaleable. Project Operator hereby releases Tree Owner from any liability associated with Tree Owner's obligations and responsibilities under this Agreement to the extent caused by market conditions beyond the control of either Party that render credits economically unviable or unsaleable.

(d) Project Operator shall keep safe and preserve all proceeds from the sale and/or retirement by Project Operator of credits into a separate fund. Upon request, Tree Owner is entitled to information about the balance of the separate fund and the types of investment in the fund. For the avoidance of doubt, the sale, transfer, and/or retirement of Credits shall not be construed as a Transfer under this Section 22.

23. Force Majeure

“Force Majeure” means an event or circumstance which prevents or substantively hinders a Party (the “Claiming Party”) from performing its obligations under this Agreement; provided, that, such event or circumstance is not within the reasonable control of, or the result of negligence or willful misconduct by, the Claiming Party, and which the Claiming Party is unable to overcome or avoid or cause to be avoided, by the exercise of reasonable care. Force Majeure shall include, without limitation, the following events, or circumstances: acts of God; fire; flood; earthquake; war; extreme weather; explosions; pandemics or epidemics (including, without limitation, COVID-19); or acts of terrorism. Notwithstanding the foregoing, Force Majeure shall not include Unavoidable Reversals.

If a Claiming Party is rendered unable, wholly or in part, by Force Majeure to carry out its obligations with respect to this Agreement, then the obligations of the Claiming Party will, to the extent, and only to the extent, they are affected by such Force Majeure event, be suspended during the period of time that the Force Majeure event renders the Claiming Party unable, wholly or in part, to carry out its obligations. The Claiming Party must promptly give written notice and full particulars of such Force Majeure event to the other Party as soon as practical after the occurrence of such Force Majeure event.

City Forest Credits Afforestation and Reforestation Project Application

INSTRUCTIONS: Provide information about how the project meets the eligibility criteria as outlined in the City Forest Credits (CFC) Afforestation and Reforestation Protocol Version 12. Submit a draft application in word format to CFC before signing the final version. Include a map of the project area with the application. All project information will be shared on the public-facing project webpage on the Carbon Project Registry.

1. Project Name

Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board Planting Project 2023

2. Project Operator

Provide the name of organization/entity and contact information for the Project Lead

Organization/Entity: Green Cities Accord

Address: PO Box 582877

City: Minneapolis

State: MN

Zip: 55458

Contact(s): Michaela Neu

Phone: 904-404-2669

Email: mneu@greencitiesaccord.org

3. Project Location

Project must be in or adjacent to one of the following. Describe which one of the criteria the project meets and provide name of city, town, or jurisdiction where project is located.

- Urban Area or Urban Cluster boundary per U.S. Census Bureau
- Boundary of any incorporated or unincorporated city or town
- Boundary of any planning area for a regional metropolitan planning agency or entity
- Within the boundary of land owned, designated, and used by a municipal or quasi-municipal entity for source water or watershed protection
- Within a transportation or utility right of way through one of above

This project is located at multiple sites within the City of Minneapolis, MN, meeting the project area eligibility criteria of being in an incorporated city.

4. Project Description

Provide short narrative of the overall project goals, location where trees will be planted, land ownership or eligibility to receive credits, approximate number of trees or acres, main tree species, and project timeframe.

Green Cities Accord and the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board (MPRB) are partnering on a third urban tree planting project to issue carbon offsets in the State of Minnesota. Green Cities Accord will serve as the Project Operator and MPRB will plant and maintain the trees. This project includes 6,973 trees that were planted within the city limits of Minneapolis, MN from April to September 2023 by the MPRB. The trees have been planted in public right-of-way along city streets as well as on other park board land where MPRB has the authority to plant and maintain trees. The method of planting is single-tree dispersed.

5. Project Impacts

Provide short narrative of the environmental, social, and health impacts this project will achieve.

Examples include how the project addresses increased access to green spaces for under-resourced communities, flood control or watershed protection, benefits for human health and wellbeing, improved recreation opportunities, or protection of bird and wildlife habitat.

In addition to sequestering carbon, this project has many other positive impacts on the residents of Minneapolis. This project helps address environmental equity disparities by prioritizing tree-plantings in Areas of Minneapolis that have low percentage tree canopy cover. Trees planted in this project will reduce heat island effects, reduce stormwater runoff and capture particulate air pollution. Proceeds from the sale of carbon offsets from this project will be reinvested in additional tree planting and maintenance performed by the MPRB.

6. Planting Design and Quantification Method

Provide short narrative about the planting design and quantification method you will use for the project. Refer to Protocol Appendix A for more detail.

- Single Tree Quantification Method: trees planted in a dispersed or scattered design that are planted at least 16.5 feet apart (i.e. street trees). This method requires tracking of individual trees and tree survival for sampling and quantification.
- Clustered Quantification Method: trees planted at least 16.5 feet apart but are relatively contiguous and designed to create canopy over an area (i.e park-like settings). This method requires tracking change in canopy, not individual tree survival.
- Area Reforestation Quantification Method: tree planting areas greater than 5 acres and where many trees are planted closer than 16.5 feet. Higher tree mortality is expected and the goals are to create canopy and a forest ecosystem. Project Operators have several quantification models to choose from, all of which produce a carbon index on a per-acre basis.

Trees were planted using the single-tree quantification method (spaced 16.5 feet or more apart, i.e. street trees or linear plantings). Planted trees are tracked and inventoried using TreeKeeper.

7. Additional Information

Provide additional information about your project. If the Project is part of a larger program or planting effort, include one sentence with more information. Examples include collaboration with other partners or how this project fits into a regional initiative.

At Green Cities Accord, our mission is to foster climate resilient communities through investments in tree canopy infrastructure. And the urban tree carbon offset program has been momentous in bringing new funding sources to our planting partners for continued tree planting and maintenance. The urban tree carbon offset program is part of the Twin Cities Climate Resiliency Initiative, a public/private partnership focused on significantly expanding the urban tree canopy across Minneapolis and the 7 county Twin Cities metropolitan area. Designed to address the most harmful impacts of climate change on our region's residents, it is a 20 year vision to increase the Metro area's tree canopy by 30% through planting and maintaining millions of additional trees on public and private lands. This initiative includes identifying new funding sources for tree planting and maintenance, including establishing Minnesota's first urban tree carbon offset program.

8. Map

Provide a map of the Project Area.

See attached.

Attestation of No Double Counting and No Net Harm

Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board Planting Project 2023 Attestation of No Double Counting of Credits and No Net Harm

I am the Director of Programs and Operations of Green Cities Accord and make this attestation regarding no double counting of credits and no net harm from this tree planting project, Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board Planting Project 2023.

1. Project Description

The Project that is the subject of this Attestation is described more fully in both our Application and our Project Design Document (PDD), both of which are incorporated into this Attestation.

2. No Double Counting by Applying for Credits from another Registry

Green Cities Accord has not and will not seek credits for CO<sub>2</sub> for the project trees or for this project from any other organization or registry issuing credits for CO<sub>2</sub> storage.

3. No Double Counting by Seeking Credits for the Same Trees or Same CO<sub>2</sub> Storage

Green Cities Accord has not and will not apply for a project including the same trees as this project nor will it seek credits for CO<sub>2</sub> storage for the project trees or for this project in any other project or more than once. Green Cities Accord has checked the location of the Project Area against registered urban forest carbon afforestation and reforestation projects. Project Operator has determined that there is no overlap of Project Area or Project Trees with any registered urban forest carbon afforestation and reforestation project.

4. No Net Harm

The trees planted in this project will produce many benefits, as described in our Application and PDD. Like almost all urban trees, the project trees are planted not for harvest but for the benefits they deliver to people, communities, and the environment as living trees in a metropolitan area.

The project trees will produce many benefits and will not cause net harm. Specifically, they will not:

- Displace native or indigenous populations
- Deprive any communities of food sources
- Degrade a landscape or cause environmental damage

Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board Planting Project 2023 Attestation of Additionality

I am the Director of Programs and Operations of Green Cities Accord and make this attestation regarding additionality from this tree planting project, Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board Planting Project 2023.

- Project Description
  - The Project that is the subject of this attestation is described more fully in both our Application and our Project Design Document (PDD), both of which are incorporated into this attestation.
- Legal Requirements Test (Protocol Section 1.8)
  - Project trees are not required by law or ordinance to be planted (except for replacement trees planted in place of removed trees for specific reasons).
- The Project did not plant trees on sites that were converted out of a forest use or that were cleared of healthy, non-invasive trees and then planted with project trees (Protocol Section 1.9)
- Project-Specific Baseline or Performance Standard Baseline
  - Project trees are additional based on a project specific baseline. See PDD; or
  - Project trees are additional based on the Performance Standard baseline; see attached baseline to the PDD. Project Operator has provided local canopy change data to support the use of the Performance Standard Baseline.
- Project Implementation Agreement for Project Duration
  - Green Cities Accord has signed a Project Implementation Agreement with City Forest Credits for 26 years.
- The 26-year Project Duration commitment is additional to and longer than any commitment the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board makes to non-carbon project tree plantings.
- Financial Additionality
  - A successful afforestation carbon project goes beyond tree planting to ensure survival of the trees to a healthy maturity at 26 years after the Project start date. These Project Trees are at risk during all stages of this project. The Project Operator has no guaranteed source of long-term maintenance funding outside of the carbon revenues. Funding from the program will be used to supplement the MPRB's tree planting budget, with the goal of maintaining tree planting at rates established from 2014 to 2021. In those years the organization planted about 8,000 trees annually, funded through its Tree Preservation and Restoration Levy, enacted in response to the emerald ash borer infestation. The levy expired in 2021, as the remaining public ash trees were replaced along streets and in parks in Minneapolis. The aim of the program is to establish a new funding source so that MPRB can expand the tree canopy, not just replace individual trees.
  - The revenue from the sale of carbon credits will play a material role in the successful and durable storage of Project Trees' carbon stock by providing funding that will help ensure the establishment and long-term health of Project Trees. Green Cities Accord and the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board have signed an Agreement to Collaborate that states that after administration and registry related fees, any remaining proceeds from the sale of carbon credits shall be transferred to the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board and the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board shall use such proceeds exclusively for the funding of urban forestry activities defined as tree purchase, tree planting and tree maintenance.

- Prior Consideration: Green Cities Accord and the Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board first started discussions regarding an urban tree carbon offset project in 2021.
- In addition, many of the activities undertaken as part of the carbon project are beyond the Project Operator's common practice, including:
  - Long-term maintenance
  - Long-term monitoring and growth assessment
  - Acceptance of reversal obligations
  - Long-term legal commitment to the project

Signed on May 24, in 2024, by Michaela Neu, Director of Programs and Operations for Green Cities Accord.

Directions

Using the information you provide and background data, the tool calculates the amount of Credits that could be issued after planting (10%), at Year 4 (30%), at Year 6 (30%), at Year 14 (10%), and at Year 26 (20%). A mortality deduction (% loss) is applied to account for anticipated tree losses (Cell D6). A 5% Reversal Pool Account deduction is applied that will go into a program-wide pool to insure against catastrophic loss of trees. This tool is used to determine credits issued after planting (Initial Crediting). A different tool is used for credit issuance in Years 4, 6, 14, and 26. The tool in those years requires calculation of a sample and collection of data on tree status in the sample sites.

Mortality Deduction (%): 20%

City Forest Carbon Project

Social Impacts

UN Sustainable Development Goals

The 17 United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) are an urgent call for action and global partnership among all countries, representing key benchmarks for creating a better world and environment for everyone. Well-designed and managed urban forests make significant contributions to the environmental sustainability, economic viability and livability of cities. They help mitigate climate change and natural disasters, reduce energy costs, poverty and malnutrition, and provide ecosystem services and public benefits. See more details in the CFC Carbon Project Social Impact Reference Guide.

Instructions

This template sets out all relevant SDGs and lists various urban forest project activities that fall within each SDG. Evaluate the SDGs to determine how your carbon project provides social impacts that may contribute towards achievement of the global goals. Check the box(es) that contain one of your project activities and describe in no fewer than two sentences how your project activities align with the corresponding SDG. On page 12, select the icon for three to five of the most relevant SDGs to your project and provide any additional information.

SDG 3 – Good Health and Well Being

Goal: Ensure healthy lives and promote well-being for all at all ages.

Examples of project activities include, but are not limited to:

- Plant or protect trees to reduce or remove air pollutants
  - If planting trees, select trees for reduced pollen counts and irritant production
- Plant or protect trees to create shade, provide UV exposure protection, reduce extreme heat negative effects, and/or reduce temperatures to relieve urban heat effects
  - Design project to buffer sounds, optimize biodiversity, or create nature experiences
  - Locate project near vulnerable populations, such as children or elderly
- Locate project near high volume roads to screen pollutants
  - Locate project near people to encourage recreation, provide new parks or green space, or otherwise promote an active lifestyle
  - Locate project near schools, elderly facilities, or mental health services to promote nature-based wellness, attention restoration, or other mental well-being

The Minneapolis Park and Recreation Board Planting Project 2023 planted trees specifically in areas of limited tree coverage that have a high correlation with areas of concentrated poverty. These areas display the highest vulnerability to impacts from climate change and are in need of assistance in greening projects. The expansion of the urban tree canopy through this project will also generate the need for an expanded environmental workforce to support the planting, auditing and maintenance of trees. Partners of this planting project are committed to supporting urban arborist workforce programs that focus on youth and young adults from our community, providing paid training opportunities and a pathway to sustainable, living wage jobs.
